HOW THE POSTOFFICE IS RUN.
THE STORY OF OUR POSTOFFICE. By Marshall Cushing. Boston: A. M. Thayer & Co.

The Postoffice of the United States has become in its operations an enormous institution. It handles 10,000,000,000 pieces of mail material annually, and the number increases at the rate of 1,000,000,000 every year. It employs 250,000 persons in its service and it expends and receives nearly 170,000,000 dollars.

Marshall Cushing, who throughout the period of the Harrison Administration sustained to Postmaster General Wanamaker the place of private secretary, has written a book of quite a thousand pages descriptive of the work which these figures vaguely indicate. Mr. Cushing has seen the operations of the Postoffice Department at both close and long range. They have passed before him in all their details, and with the trained power of observation and facility of expression of a well-equipped newspaper man he has written about them in an entertaining and instructive way. He describes the Department in Washington and the business of direction and management performed by its great bureaus, describes the system of transporting the mails as well by means of stage-coaches and screen-wagons and bronco ponies as by the transcontinental express. He describes the methods of handling mails upon the sea, and goes into the work of the great postoffices in many of the large cities. He describes the secret service, and gives many interesting stories of the experiences of inspectors in apprehending criminals and detecting crime. Mr. Cushing's book is one of general interest, and amply satisfies a public curiosity which is keen and widespread. It is a well-printed book, freely and delightfully illustrated.

Although these six stories are dreams of the misty past, their moral have a most direct bearing on the present. An author who has the soul to conceive such stories is worthy to rank among the highest. One of our best literary critics, Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, says:

"I think it is a work of real genius, Homeric in its simplicity and beautiful exceedingly."

BUSINESS AT THE EXCHANGES.

The real estate market showed considerable dullness yesterday, and, except in a few instances, the bidding was lively, with a slack demand. Excluding the legal sales, seventeen parcels were offered at auction, of which three were actually sold, one with withdrawal having been at private sale, and the rest withdrawn. Frank Hernandez was the buyer. The same firm withdrew No. 221 Madison-ave., 100 ft. front, 100 ft. deep, at private sale.
